

Approving the Bell South petition referenced above will have the force and effect of eliminating the the smaller independent ISPs. This would be a great loss by eliminating competition and impairing innovation. The internet should remain competitive and innovative to continue to be the driving force of the information age technical and financial growth it has become. We will be poorer economically and intellectually if the phone company ISPs are allowed to become local monopolies.